

WOOL TARIFF BILL WAS PRESENTED TO DEMOCRATS CAUCUS

MEASURE DRAWN UP BY WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE SUBMITTED TO MAJORITY MEMBERS OF HOUSE TODAY.

LOWERS THE REVENUES

Democrats Claim, However, That Increase in Importations Will Counterbalance Amount Lost by Lowering Tariff.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The democratic wool tariff bill, prepared by the Ways and Means committee of the House was presented to the democratic caucus today.

The bill makes reductions from one-half to two-thirds on all wool duties and raw wool is given a duty of twenty per cent ad valorem, equivalent to 3 to 5 cents a pound. The new bill includes the following: Raw wool, proposed duty 20 per cent, existing only 44.21. Women's and children's dress goods, proposed duty 45 per cent, existing 7.11. Ready made clothing and wearing apparel, proposed, 45; existing, 31.31. The general average ad valorem duty on manufactured wool under the proposed law is estimated at 42.55 per cent, while under the existing law it figured 40.10.

Although the proposed wool tariff represents a reduction of only $1,350,000 in the revenue of the government, the democrats believe the estimate in the reduction of the tariff will increase the importation of wool from $70,745,000 last year to one hundred and thirty-one million dollars.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—W. J. Bryan today practically threw down the gauntlet to the democratic leaders in congress. Speaker Clark, Chairman Underwood, and the other congressional leaders, must either fall in line for free wool or there will be a split within the party, declares Mr. Bryan in substance.

Mr. Bryan arrived here to attend the banquet of the Northwestern Democrats at the St. Paul hotel tonight.

His choice.

Washington, June 1.—Whether Wm. J. Bryan's activity in demanding free wool, will go so far as another candidacy for presidential nomination in 1912 or whether it will be confined in awaiting the selection of a candidate agreeable to all factions, is being widely discussed.

GARRY CLAIMS THAT GOVERNMENT KNOWS ABOUT STEEL TRUST

Claims Department of Commerce and Labor Spent Six Years Collecting Information, Which is As Much As He Could Give.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—Judge Robert H. Garry, chief executive officer of the United States Steel Corporation, before the Stanley investigating committee of the House, today intimated that either President Taft or the Department of Commerce and Labor has suppressed an exhaustive report on the Steel Corporation, made by the Bureau of Corporations. Garry said the Bureau had investigated continuously for six years at an enormous cost, and that almost any information he might be able to give was in the hands of the government. He, however, declared he was not sure the report had yet been furnished the President.

Garry flatly denied any knowledge of the proposed formation of a combination to control the steel trade of the world. The disclaimer as to world wide combination was called out by a statement by Chairman Stanley, that Garry was accredited with being the directing genius of such "trust."

Garry declared he would be able to furnish the committee with all facts and figures that the committee wanted concerning the affairs of the Steel Corporation and its subsidiary companies. He was asked if the Carnegie Steel company now competes with other subsidiary companies?

"It does," Garry said, "and subsidiary companies have their own directors and officers and have a right to act independently, but as the Steel Corporation owns the securities, if the conduct of the subsidiary companies is intangible it is only a question of time when the administration of that subsidiary company would be changed."

DEDICATE MONUMENT TO FORMER SUPREME JUSTICE L. S. DIXON

State Lawmakers, Governor, and Prominent Men of State Attend Dedication at Forest Hill Cemetery.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 1.—An imposing granite shaft fifty feet high, in memory of Luther Swift Dixon, who served as chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court from 1859 to 1874, was dedicated in Forest Hill cemetery here today.

The monument is the gift of the Wisconsin Bar association, which was represented at the ceremony by Gov. Francis E. McGovern, Chief Justice John B. Winslow, George H. Noyes of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Annie M. Viles, John M. Olin, A. E. Prouditt, Mrs. Eliza M. Koyes, Burr W. Jones, William R. Hagley, Judge A. L. Sanborn and L. S. Hanks of Madison. In presenting the memorial on behalf of the bar association, Justice L. J. Marshall of the supreme court said:

"Luther Swift Dixon gave lustre to Wisconsin jurisprudence, inspiring this conclusion of the eloquent word picture of him, his ideals and fidelity to them, inscribed on the granite before us—'His name is a synonym of justice, integrity, truth and honor.'"

Accepting the monument on behalf of the supreme court, Chief Justice Winslow said in part:

"To those who believe in government by law, under constitutional limitations and safeguards, the present occasion is of great significance. He in whose memory this granite column has been erected, great and many-sided though he was, may truthfully be said to represent one great idea above all others—the supremacy of the constitution and the law as administered by fearless and incorruptible courts. The career of Luther Swift Dixon was not spectacular in the ordinary sense. ... During the fifteen years he served the people of the state, though he was frequently attacked and often misjudged, there was ever present to his calm, clear gaze one great conception—the conception of government by law, as administered as to give equal and exact justice to every citizen. Equal and exact justice has been the paramount demand of the human soul since man first wronged his fellow man; it has been the dream of the philosopher, the aim of the law-giver, the supreme endeavor of the Judge, the ultimate test of every government and every civilization."

Tomorrow the members of the supreme court will go to Milwaukee, where in Forest Hill cemetery will be dedicated a similar shaft to the memory of Edward G. Ryan, who served as chief justice from 1874 to 1880. James G. Flanders of Milwaukee will pronounce the dedication.

CENSUS-TAKING TO START IN CANADA

Commissioners and Assistants Will Commence Work of Decennial Census Tomorrow Morning.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ottawa, Ont., June 1.—The decennial census-taking of the Dominion will begin tomorrow morning. The numbering of the people will be made upon the defunct system. All persons included at midnight tonight will be included in the count. Nearly 400 commissioners and small army of assistants will be employed in the work and total cost to the government will exceed $1,000,000.

Schedules will be left at every hall, station to be filled and signed by the head of the household. These contain about a score of questions to be answered in writing. In addition to other questions which may be asked by the enumerator, in addition to the usual information about age, nationality and religion, the present census is to comprise a record of accidents, disabilities and compensation paid, probably with a view to some future national insurance law.

It will require about a month to complete the work of the enumerators, except in some of the more difficult districts of the West and British Columbia. The census in the Mackenzie River basin is to be taken by Hudson's Bay officials, missionaries and mounted police officers. The latter will also aid in the same work in the Yukon.

The population of Canada at the last census-taking was 5,575,000. It is thought the present count will show an immense increase, the total probably reaching 8,000,000. The greatest gains are expected in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and Manitoba is also expected to show a good increase.

IMPORTANT DECISION BY SUPREME COURT

STATE COURT'S OPINIONS ON IMPORTANT MATTERS MADE PUBLIC.

PABST CASE DECIDED

Terms of the Will Provisions of the Late Captain Pabst Made Clear by Latest Ruling.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 1.—By a decision of the state supreme court today, Mrs. Emma Boehlein comes into possession of $300,000 in cash from the estate of her father, the late Capt. Frederick Pabst, the millionaire Milwaukee brewer. In this case, which has hung fire in the courts for several years, the supreme court affirmed the conclusion of the circuit court of Milwaukee county.

The case (entitled No. 95, Emma Boehlein vs. Edith Boehlein, appellant) brought before the court questions concerning the administration of the trusts established by the late Capt. Pabst for the benefit of his family. Capt. Pabst divided his estate into five equal parts, giving one each to his four surviving children and one to his grandchild. His estate consisted principally of stock in the Pabst Brewing company. He provided that the share of his daughter, Emma, should be controlled by trustees and that she should receive only the income thereof, until such time as a child should be born to her and should reach the age of ten years, at which time, if Emma was still living, she was to have her share absolutely, but if this event never happened the share was to be disposed of elsewhere.

Mrs. Boehlein now has two children, aged 7 and 5, respectively. Since Capt. Pabst's death the brewing company has accumulated a surplus of $2,000,000. In 1910 the stockholders voted to declare a stock dividend of $2,500,000, distributing the new stock dividend among the stockholders arranged at the same time to dispose of this new stock to the cash for the stock dividend. The Wisconsin Trust company, trustee for Mrs. Boehlein, participated in the arguments and now holds about $200,000 in cash as the result of the transaction. The question presented here was whether the amount is the property of Mrs. Boehlein and must be paid to her at once, or whether it is to be held by the trustee as part of the principal of the trust. The circuit court held that the money belongs to Mrs. Boehlein and must be paid to her at once. The supreme court upholds this decision.

Civil Service Law.

The State Supreme Court today found an opinion holding the Wisconsin Civil Service Law constitutional excepting one prohibition. This prohibition which stipulates the office of a constitutional state officer shall be declared vacant if such officer fails to comply with the Civil Service Law with regard to the appointment of his subordinates does not affect the validity of the law in the whole according to the opinion of the court. The test to the opinion of the court. The test to the opinion of the court.

They are the result of several years of negotiation between the company and the men. At one point the negotiations were broken off and a general strike seemed imminent.

GROWERS ARE NEARLY READY FOR SETTING

TRANSPLANTING OF YOUNG TO-BACCO PLANTS WILL BEGIN
NEXT WEEK IN EARNEST.

CROP WILL BE EARLY

It is Estimated Most of Crop Will be in by the Twentieth of June—Little Movement in Old Goods in This Market.

There has been practically no tobacco transplanted in the vicinity of Janesville as yet but the work will begin in earnest next week. Some of the growers who expected to be ready by the end of this week have postponed the work until next week as larger plants were desired. However, the plants are growing rapidly and in many cases will be ready for the growers when they are prepared for handling them.

It has been reported that a farmer living near Edgerton began transplanting Memorial Day but that it is all which has been heard from in this vicinity.
The earlier plants are said to be the best this season and most of the growers are well supplied. In some cases, however, the late frost caught the young plants so that these beds are of no account.

Where the tobacco ground was plowed over early and worked into shape the soil is in excellent shape for setting. But it is reported that there are a large number of farmers who had planned or large acreage who are not plowing yet to think of. In many instances trouble will undoubtedly be encountered in fitting the ground as the drought is now beginning to affect the soil and unless rain comes to the relief soon they may be up against a proposition similar to that of last year.

S. H. Hedges is planning to set some thirty acres of the weed and will begin operations next week with the intention of finishing the work within a period of two weeks or a little more. O. N. Coon will also do the first of this work next week, and it is thought that by next Saturday a considerable amount will be in the fields.

Movement of the old goods in the local market has been slack for the past week, amounting practically to that which is necessary to supply the trade. Small consignments by a number of dealers here will bring the total number of cases out of here to about three hundred.

Sorting operations at the P. S.
Haines warehouse has been suspended for the present and the house may not open again for that purpose this summer. This is the last of the warehouse here to close and ends a run of five months. Since the first of this year there have been eleven or twelve houses at work on the 1910 crop, some of which had very long runs. It is evident from this that the amount of last year's crop handled here was considerable.

The new crop is now well into the sweating process and dealers are confident that conditions are all that could be desired. It is said that the crop will come through this important process in good shape with a better color than was at first expected.

Local dealers have been interested in the decision of the supreme court in the Tobacco Trust case and various opinions are expressed as to the effects on the trade. It is thought by some that the clear cut trade would be benefited by the decision as well as the small manufacturer.

NORTHWESTERN DEPOT OPEN ON SUNDAY NEXT

New Chicago Terminal Will Be Formally Opened for Trains on June 4th—Finest Station in Chicago.

Janesville passengers going to Chicago on Sunday next via the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, will run into Chicago's newest, finest and largest railroad station, the Chicago & Northwestern, at Canal and West Madison streets, which cost in the neighborhood of $28,000,000 and which has been five and one-half years in building, which opens for passenger service Sunday morning. Train No. 6, on the Chicago division, the Atlantic Express, will carry the first passengers into the new terminal when it pulls into the new building at 6:54 a. m.

With the opening of the new station
the present terminal at Kinzie and Wells streets will be abandoned.

Innovations in New Station.

The magnificent new West Side station will open with every detail complete and in operation. Not only will the new station be the largest and costliest in the city but it will contain many innovations. One of these is the eliminating of the old style arched roof track shed. In its stead has been placed the umbrella type of individual train shed, which permits all smoke from engines to escape into the open air direct from the stacks.
All trains enter the station above street level.

The station itself is a four-story structure of the early Italian renaissance style, with a lofty Doric portico at the main entrance. The main waiting room has a barrel vault roof. The interior is finished with various kinds of costly marble.

Ready for Active Service.

Every department of the big building, including dining-room, refreshment room, news stands, rest rooms, mail department, transfer stations and the rest will be ready for active service beginning Sunday morning.

Two banks failed in a little dried up town of central New York. The other city and one man had $10,000 in cash which had been deposited for fifteen years drawing two per cent interest. Had he put the money in Wisconsin farm loans he would have had $12,000 more interest and all his money. Instead he received only $8,700 from the receiver. In other words, he invested $20,000 and received $6,000 in interest and $8,700 final dividend, total $12,700. By the farm mortgage route he would have invested $20,000 and have received $18,000 interest and the whole principal, total $38,000. He lost just $25,300 by not using good judgment in investing his money.

We have several small mortgages
now on hand. Write us.

Beware of Pessimism.

Pessimism is the work of the timid faith in himself that he feels that however he suffers or is oppressed under present conditions he will be still less able to take care of himself under any others.

HON. H. A. COOPER WILL SPEND FOURTH COMMITTEE'S GUEST

Accepts Invitation Personally On His Arrival in City This Afternoon.

Among the notables who will spend the coming Fourth in Janesville, is Congressman H. A. Cooper of Racine.
The joint committee of the Industrial and Commercial Club and of the United Spanish War Veterans sent a warm invitation to Mr. Cooper in Washington some days ago, but meantime he had left for his native land and would not be able to accept it until after his delivery of the oration of the day. He is now on his way back to Washington, and spent this afternoon in the city.

Mr. Cooper is most interested in the coming military celebration and was evidently much pleased at his invitation to be present during the three big days, July 3rd, 4th and 5th.
He has already been engaged for him and he will reach the city Monday and will probably deliver an address either to the United Spanish War Veterans' convention or in the Court House Park on July 4th.

Relative to the matter of securing a detail of regular troops for Janesville during the celebration, Mr.
Cooper said this afternoon he had the matter before the war department for consideration and possibly it could be arranged. He will give the matter his personal attention when he returns to Washington.

When shown the report of the "Wool Schedule" as presented by the democrats in congress he said: "It will be popular in some districts and in others not so much so. I would prefer to investigate the matter under consideration, before making any decided statement."

Mr. Cooper is also behind the bill presented in congress to establish a government Fish Culture station here, and says he hopes that the bill will pass and the plan carried out. The bill is now before the House committee waiting a hearing.

NO FURTHER CHARGES ARE TO BE BROUGHT

Following Dismissal of W. J. Hutchins, Yesterday, Prosecution in Case
Will Be Dropped by District Attorney.

That there would be no further charges brought against W. J. Hutchins, the man who was charged with wife abandonment and who was yesterday released in the municipal court after a preliminary examination, was stated by District Attorney Duvall this morning. Further than this statement, the district attorney was non-committal.

The impression given by the testimony offered during the examination, was that both the complaining witness, Tillie Zanzinger, and the defendant, Hutchins, were perhaps guilty in a certain measure of offering false testimony. She alleged that in company with the defendant, she went to Chicago, where a marriage ceremony was performed. The story of the trip to Chicago, as far as the defendant, was told by both parties, corresponded, up to the point where they leave the junction for Chicago. The defendant admitted that he ever went to that city, while the plaintiff stated that there was a ceremony there before a justice, after which both returned on the next train for Hollet, where they resided for a time.

It is alleged that if there was a marriage in Chicago, it would be impossible to prove that fact; in fact, the records of Cook county have been gone over with no trace of the license, which seems to prove that it there was a ceremony it was a mock marriage.
The defendant might be held on a statutory charge, but there are facts concerning the past record of both parties that would make this impossible.

The action was brought in the first place on a warrant issued last fall for the arrest of Hutchins following the disappearance of his wife and the Zanzinger from Harmony, their home. "This fact, coupled with the nature of the testimony of the complaining witness, would seem to block any further prosecution of Hutchins."

CEMETERY LOTS ARE BEING DESECRATED

Flowers and Beds Have Suffered at Hands of Persons in Both Mt.
Olivet and Oak Hill.

Desecration of the flower beds and private lots of the Mt. Olivet cemetery is the latest outrage that has been reported in this city. In several instances not only have the flowers on the shrubs and bushes been picked up, but whole plants have been taken up by the roots and carried away.

Charges of this kind were brought to notice by the owner of one of the lots, James P. Sweeney, who has been the chief sufferer from this source. This spring Mr. Sweeney had set out several very fine plants in the iron urns on the family lot. They were attended to Sunday and were found to be in good condition. Upon going to the cemetery on Memorial day it was discovered that some of the plants had been taken up and carried away. Upon further investigation it was learned that others had had the same trouble.

One of the shrub bushes owned by Mrs. M. J. Conroy had been robbed of quite a number of the blossoms and the matter was finally taken up with Dean E. E. Kelly. The latter denounced the offenders before the destruction and every effort has been made to ascertain who the guilty parties are.

The authorities of Oak Hill cemetery have also been confronted with the same difficulty and announced that when found they would be punished to the full extent of the law.

DECIDE TONIGHT ON CONVENTION PLANS FOR COMING YEAR

Whether Janesville Entertains the Nineteen Twelve Convention of Eagles Or Not To Be Settled.

Whether Janesville will offer an invitation to the coming state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, inviting them to come to Janesville
next year for their state convention, will be decided at the June meeting of the local lodge this evening. The convention this year will be held in Marshfield and it is probable that Janesville could secure the location for next year if given proper support by the business men. Aside from the regular business this evening there is a large class of initiatives to be instructed in the work and a social session will follow that promises to be interesting.

TRAVELLING MEN MAY MEET HERE IN 1912

Delegates to U. C. T. Convention in Green Bay Will Make Efforts to Bring Next Convention to Janesville.

Several members of Janesville Council No. 108, United Commercial Travellers, went to Green Bay this morning to attend the annual estate convention of the order which opened there this morning. Included in the number were C. H. Evans, grand chaplain; E.
C. Burdick, a representative of the auditing committee; Charles L. Hanson and E. M. Cotman, delegates from the local council; Fred L. Green, secretary of Janesville council, and Junior Councilor P. L. Muner. Mrs.
Charles Hanson accompanied her husband to the meeting. The Janesville delegation will this year extend an invitation to the convention to hold its next session in Janesville in 1912 and it is thought that this invitation will be accepted. Only one other town is working to get the convention, Sheboygan, and it is said they will not stand in the way if another city desires it. If Janesville will secure the convention it will mean that between three and four hundred people will be assembled in the city at the time.

Dr. Hoeve also recommended the abolishing of capital punishment. He has a large collection of skulls of criminals, and is considered an authority in research of criminal tendencies. His findings, he said, prove to him that ossification of the skull prevented brain development and created a criminal in 37 per cent. of cases investigated, and that operations would have made the person normal.

WILL ROUT HERESIES AT UNION SEMINARY.

Directors of Theological Institution at New York Are Determined Upon Drastic Action.

New York, June 1.—The Presbyterian general assembly, having practically secured control of Union Theological seminary, and not having surrendered in its 20-year fight against heresy, it is now proposed to reorganize that institution.

This is the real meaning of the "Overtures" to the seminary trustees made at the general assembly in Atlantic City last week.

The directors of the seminary have given substantial assurance that they will insist that all instructors in the divinity school shall be free from the taint of heresy. Those who are unable or unwilling to subscribe to the essential doctrines of the Presbyterian church will have to go.

The committee appointed by the assembly will insist that there is no room in the Presbyterian church for those who doubt the Deity of Jesus Christ, his miracles and the Atonement. New York presbytery will come in for its share of the purging in time, it is said on good authority. That the majority of its membership now favors this is also said to be true.

Dr. David G. Wylie, one of the New York members of the committee, refused to say that changes in the faculty of the seminary were to be proposed by the committee. He said that it would be unwise to discuss action which might, or might not, be taken by the committee.

Of Course

If you are satisfied not to do quite so well, stay where you are. Quite a number of people are looking around for a better place of residence. Coming right to the real issue, we know of plenty of people to whom we can refer you, who, after having lived in Janesville have moved elsewhere, remained away for a few months in some instance, a few years in others. Some could not stand the change, so moved back; bag and baggage. Others return to visit friends. All tell the same story: that they had to go away in order to appreciate what Janesville really meant to them; that many who live here do not realize what a fine city we have, so favored in many ways.

Water from the bowels of the earth, clear as crystal, none better—a thing to consider.

Climate that averages good, rather long winters, but a veritable resort during the summer months, and Oh, such lovely autumns. The pleasant weather greatly overbalances the rough periods. Just enough rain, just enough sunshine, to make mother earth bring forth the most robust offsprings. The beautiful drives out of the city are as numerous as the spokes of a wheel.

Be thankful if YOU live in Janesville, and don't forget to tell about it outside.

FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING GROCERS

TO COMPETE IN ENGLAND FOR GOLF HONORS.

Boston, Mass.—Parker W. Whittemore, of the Country club, Brookline, may play in the British amateur golf championship at Prestwick. He is to take a short trip abroad with Mrs. Whittemore, and will arrange matters so that he can be at Prestwick for the title play.

Should Mr. Whittemore be among the starters at Prestwick, May 29, and all the other United States golfers take part who have been slated to enter the championship, there will be a formidable array representing this side of the Atlantic. C. E. Evans, Jr., is going as a certainty; W. C.

Fownes, Jr., the U. S. G. R. amateur champion, presumably is going, as is his sister, who will play in the Scotch and British women's championships; Frederick Herschoff, the Metropolitan district champion, and undoubtedly one of the longest drivers in the world, has figured on going, and now it is reported that Louis Livingston is another who will enter. The last named presumably is the same golfer who figured prominently in U. S. G. A. golf a few years ago.

Mr. Whittemore is reported as having been in splendid fettle earlier this year at Pinobur, and last season he played the best golf of his career, so if he goes to Prestwick his presence means much to the coterie of American players in the British championship. From watching his style in practice—as the British players are certain to do in the case of all the Americans entered, having heard so much about some of them—the golfers of the Isles may be greatly misled, and underrate his abilities. If so, it may be to their subsequent chagrin. The old Harvard baseball player would never take a prize for golfing form, yet he has a "got there" style that is likely to win a pace which the best amateur in England would find difficult to equal. Some of his scores at the Country club are proof enough of this statement.

Biblical Mathematician.
An interesting problem in mathematics assumes the form of a tradition, connecting itself with the name of Josephus, the Jewish historian. After the Romans had captured Jotapat, so the story runs, Josephus and 40 others sought shelter in a cave. So afraid were they of falling into the hands of the Romans that all of them excepting Josephus and one other man resolved to kill themselves. The wit of the historian began to work, devising a scheme to save himself and this other man who was ill-minded with himself. He therefore proposed that they all stand in a semicircle, and that they put each other to death, killing every third man in regular order, and that the last surviving man should then commit suicide. This agreed upon, he was careful to place his ill-minded comrade in the sixteenth place in the line and himself in place 31, with the result that the two were the last that were left, and by this means escaped death. It is a true problem, and the question was to know before the killing began which number in line the two friends should assume.

Echoes Told Location of Icebergs.
Captain Anderson of the Scandinavian-American liner Kentucky, from Copenhagen said recently:

"Life on the sea is being made easier not so much by science as by common sense. When the Kentucky was to the eastward of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, in a dense fog, the temperature began to drop and the atmosphere indicated the presence of icebergs.

"We were at a loss to tell whether they were ahead, astern, or abeam. I thought of an experiment. I had the whistle blown, the sound waves struck the huge masses of floating ice, and by means of echoes we were able to tell the location of the icebergs, and steered to the northward, away from the drifting bergs.

Russia Versus New York.
The other day the New York papers carried a rather remarkable "story." A Russian named Mark Soloff, who escaped from the convict mines in Siberia, announced that he was tired of trying to gain a livelihood in New York; that the competition was so great and the strain so hard that the mines of Siberia were preferable. He had saved up his scant savings until he had enough to get a ticket back to Russia, and he was leaving to re-enter the mines. This is certainly not a glowing tribute to the land of great freedom from a man who has come out of that which is pictured as the one of deep gloom and great tribulation.

Properly Expressive.
In one of the capitals of Europe there has been put up a big and costly hotel and the manager has chosen for its telegraphic address the expressive word, "Luxury."

A Philosophic Editor.
The editor of the Kirkwood (W. Va.) Leader is a genuine philosopher. His rival on the Journal calls him "an old skunk," and the Leader replies that "the skunk is a cherished animal, so much so that the legislature has passed a special law protecting it, and that therefore his safety is assured."

Speed of Carrier Pigeons.
Carrier pigeons, in calm weather, can travel at a speed of 1,200 yards a minute. With a brisk wind prevailing and blowing in the direction of its flight, a pigeon has been known to make 1,900 yards a minute.

Making Light of Rules.
"I chafe against the regulations," murmured the college girl as she prepared surreptitious Welsh rabbit at 2 a. m.—Harvard Lampoon.

Uncalled-for Solitude.
Old Nurse (to young lady who is going to New Zealand)—So you're going away to one of the countries, Miss Mary, where they have day when we have night, and night when we have day? Miss Mary—Yes, nurse. Old Nurse—Oh, it will take you some time to get accustomed to the change—Punch.

Philosophic Reasoning.
Dr. Zottner, a celebrated bachelor, was asked why he never married. "Well," he said, "marriage must either be paradise or inferno. Now, I do not deserve paradise, so I should surely not get it, and inferno I have a strong objection to."—H. H. H.

World's Largest School.
The largest school in the world is the Jews' free school of Spitalfield, England, which has a daily attendance of more than 3,000 pupils.

Remarkable.
A celebrated actress, fresh and youthful looking, was in the habit of invariably taking 18 years from her age. She was called once in a law case and gave the usual response. Her son was called immediately after and on being asked his age, he replied, promptly: "Six months older than my mother."—H. H. H.

Knew His Place.
"What did you think of your daughter's graduation essay?" "I didn't permit myself to think about it," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I simply did my duty and admired it."—Washington Star.

An Old Habit.
The physician who attributes the lying habit to the use of cigarettes forgets that the habit antedates the manufacture of the "cotton nail."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH SAMERON.

CAN YOU concentrate? Absolutely, I mean, and for more than a minute or two at a time. If you can, you are one man or woman in a hundred.

If you can, you have learned one of the most important lessons of living.

If you can, you are already at least ten rounds up the ladder of success. And if you cannot, you are simply my old friend—the average man. For it is daily impressed upon me that the ability to concentrate is a very rare one.

If you will sit down to a task and apply yourself to it for half an hour without allowing one thought of what you are going to do next, one thought of what you have accomplished, one moment of dreaming of other things to creep into your mind, without permitting yourself one glance out of the window, one instant of toying with the fittings of your desk, you can do an average person's work in that half hour.

If the big business men who astonish lesser men by the prodigious amounts of work they accomplish, were to tell how they do it, I don't doubt in nine cases out of ten we should find that they did not work any longer hours than other men. I think they would simply say that while they worked, they worked with a big W—in other words, concentrated.

A good test of one's ability to concentrate is to get someone to say over four lines of poetry to you. A person of any concentration ought to be able to repeat this much from hearing it once.

It really pains the average man to concentrate absolutely, because he hasn't been used to doing it. The unaccustomed mental effort strains his mind's muscles just as an unaccustomed physical effort would strain his physically.

What the world needs is more men and women whose minds have been trained from childhood to be capable of concentration. I remember a girl I knew in college who could sit down in a room crowded with girls laughing and talking, bend over her Latin book and instantly become oblivious to all around her in her concentration upon her task.

We used to say things to each other particularly calculated to distract her attention and laugh at her when she failed to rise to the bait, and some times even take her book away from her and otherwise plague her, but we all admired her just the same and knew she would amount to something.

And she has. Given average ability and the habit of concentration as against unusual mental output and inability to concentrate, and I'll back the former every time. I wish the habit of concentration could be taught in the public schools. I suppose it is impracticable, but it seems to me if our teachers could be made to realize the inestimable value of that habit they might help to inculcate it and perhaps, incidentally, learn it themselves.

Heart and Home Talks

by Barbara Boyd

About the Children.

Some Things We Can Do for the Children.

SOME one has said that he has more respect for the child than he has for the man, because a future President of the United States may stand before him in the person of the youngster. This way of putting it is only bringing home to us a little more vividly than usual the potentialities in the child. We are apt to overlook these, especially if children are about us every day.

But it is these potentialities of the child that are so important. And it is the recognition of the importance of them that is today bringing about the many movements in behalf of children. Thousands of children are growing up today, and their wonderful possibilities are going to waste or being misdirected. Some of this happens in well-managed homes where the physical well-being of the child is looked to, but little thought otherwise is given to him. He is left to scramble up mentally and morally as he can. But the most of this haphazard development among children occurs, of course, among the children of the slums. Here, by the thousands, they are left to grow, like Topsy.

But the consequences of children's developing in this fashion is not felt by themselves alone. Their dwarfed or ill-directed lives will some day come in contact with or influence directly or indirectly the life of the carefully brought up child. So that the mother who carefully shelters her child and gives him all the thought and care possible is yet not doing her whole duty by him, while this outside menace to his future welfare does not receive some of her attention.

Many things can be done for these children, and many movements are on foot to help them. In New York recently was held an exhibit that had to do with the welfare of children. The whole city went to school to study the child, and the results were both startling and inspiring. As a result, a greater impetus has been given to this work for conservation and development of children. If one may so call it. Every woman should lend a hand to help further it in the cause of humanity, and, more selfishly, for the good of the children within her own home or family circle.

Playgrounds are needed for city children. Many schools need to be better ventilated and better lighted. Open-air schools for tuberculous children should be in every city. Special teaching for backward children is another necessity. School lunches should be provided for the underfed. There are dozens of things that can be done to build these little folks into stronger, vigorous men and women with minds and hands trained to joyously earn their living.

And if these things are not done, these children may become consumptives, and your carefully reared child catch it. They may become criminals, and your own son and daughter be a victim. They may be paupers, and your children be compelled to contribute to their support.

Helping them from a love of humanity is the finer motive. But, if this has no force, then help them because such work is but a part of caring for the best welfare of one's own child. For today, social conditions are such that what helps one, helps all; and what injures one, injures all. The epidemic that breaks out in the slums, may ravage the homes of the most aristocratic quarter.

But one should really give what aid and influence and time one can to these various movements for children's welfare, that the potentialities in each of these little ones may be realized, and they become the happy, useful members of society it is in them to be, if their powers are only rightly developed. In this, is the greatness and joy of the work.

When Katie Waits

By Byron Williams

When Katie waits for me at night, The world is full of sweetness. And evening breezes in the trees Ring low of love's completeness. The air is heavy with the scent Of grape and balam nodding. While homeward go the lowing cows By winding pathways, plodding.

When Katie waits for me at night, My heart is gay with gladness. The air is filled with dulcet sound, With not a note of sadness. The dew upon the gleaming grass Is sparkling, shimmering, And I, with fervent thoughts of bliss, My falling courage musing.

When Katie waits for me at night, To meet the woman of my heart I double the gateway, blinding. But when I see her wondrous eyes, I dare not tell my story. Nor trust my feet to tread the paths That lead away to glory!

But sometime there shall come a way To banish all my doubting. And win from her a whispered yes From those red lips smiling. Ah, sometime she will wait for me With shy, surrendered sweetness As waits a woman for the man Who brings her life's completeness!

Then I shall tread the jeweled way Where myrtle bunks are growing And all the world is filled with love And fond affection glowing. And every path shall lead to her, To love and home and glory. With only peace and sweet content— When I have told my story!

BIRTHDAY MONTH OF ROSES. June 1.—This is the first day of the month of roses and brides and preliminaries to diverse proceedings and all that sort of stuff. In the Roman calendar it was the fourth month of the year and was dedicated to the "Juno-festival," which was the name given to the junior branch of the legation. The Romans decided that June was the most propitious month of the year to dedicate to their sweethearts and whisper in their ear the blunkest that has been handed to the dear things since the first dawn. If the average young lady would steel her heart during June, she could probably fight shy of the matrimonial game during the rest of the year. But perhaps she doesn't want to, so if you are still single get busy during the next 30 days and you may ask some questions that will set you up and you have the rest of the year to wonder how you ever did it.

Unhappy News. Little Pitcher—Pop, did you ever do big jumps?

Father.—No, my son, I never took to athletic sports. Why do you ask?

Little Pitcher.—Because I heard Mrs. Smith tell Mrs. Jones yesterday you were such a bouncer.

Not at All.

"There is a strong woman in the circus this year who handles her husband as if he were an infant."

"Pshaw! It doesn't take a strong woman to do that."

The KITCHEN CABINET

EARLY VEGETABLES.

When cooking fresh beans, try using a little salt pork and cook until the beans are tender, then season and serve.

Another way to serve the green beans is to prepare and cook them as above, and just before taking up add a little vinegar and a sprinkling of finely shredded onion.

When one has a few of different kinds of vegetables, with none in sufficient quantity to serve alone, try:

Gypsy Stew.—Cut carrots in slices, new onions, new potatoes and a few peas. Cook with bits of dried salt pork, and when all are cooked season and add a little milk.

Generalities.

Remove tea and coffee stains from linen by rubbing on a little borax and then soak for half an hour in cold water. After soaking spread over a bowl and pour boiling water through the spots.

To keep pink dresses fresh in color, use a piece of red crepe paper in the rinse and starch water. The dresses will come out as pretty in color as when new.

To prepare crumbs for scalloped dishes, season with salt and pepper and stir in a small quantity of melted butter. Mix well before using.

Clean currants by rubbing between the hands with a little flour, then wash, drain and dry them and they will be ready for use if kept in a tight can.

Water in which vegetables are cooked, except potato water, is good to add to soup stock for flavoring.

Water in which rice is cooked should never be thrown away. Add a little tomato and seasoning, and the result will be a fine soup.

Let the cold water run a few moments. Never use water for cooking that has stood in the pipes.

Table Popularity.

"They say Miss Lulu is very popular when charity banquets are in question."

"So they tell me. She is a regular dinner belle."

Fruit Cream.

Make a rich boiled custard, flavor with wine and vanilla; pour into a freezer; when half frozen add pounded almonds, chopped citron and brandy, peaches or chopped raisins; have the freezer half full of custard and fill up with the fruit; mix well and freeze again; almost any kind of fruits that are preferred may be substituted for the above.

Cod Baked With Cheese.

Order one and one-half pounds of cod cut in half inch slices, season with salt and lay in a baking pan two strips of cheesecloth wrung out of cold water. Cover generously with cream cheese but in small pieces. Bake about half an hour in a hot oven.

INTERESTING LETTER
AS TO THE WAR DAYS

NEW PICTURE OF THE FIGHTING
IN AND ABOUT THE FAMOUS MISSISSIPPI CITY THAT WAS CAPTURED.

TELLS OF VICKSBURG

Editorial Day Writer. Back Home To His Sweet Telling Of Fighting and Camp Life in the Sixties.

The following letter was received by Mrs. M. C. Tuttle of Center, from her brother in camp at the siege of Vicksburg, in 1862. The dedication of the monument reveals old memories, and the letter will be read with interest.

Camp in rear of Vicksburg, Miss.
Thursday evening, June 21st, 1862.

My dear sister Mary:

As I have a chance to send a letter to you directly, by Mr. Arthur Langdon, who leaves here for home tomorrow morning, I will improve it and write you a few lines just to assure you of my present health and safety.

I was made glad again night before last by the reception of another good letter from you, dated May 31st, for which please accept my thanks.

Dear sister Mary, I hardly know what to write to you for I do not know what will interest you, but I will take it for granted that anything concerning myself will be of interest to you.

Well there has not been much change in the situation of affairs since I last wrote to you. Our army of which the 23rd Reg. is a small part is still encamped in a line surrounding the city of Vicksburg, and in rear of the rebels. The country hereabouts is one of the roughest that I ever saw, it being a succession of hills and deep ravines. Our regiment is encamped in one of the ravines distant some four hundred yards from the rebel line of forts and on the hills in front and in the rear of us are planted our batteries.

On the hill behind us there is a battery of three thirty-two pound guns, while on the hill in front of us, there are two batteries of six guns, each ten pounds.
We have here a lot of rifle pits dug in case of any alarm from the rebels. Besides these we have rifle pits on all of the hills between us and the forts up to within a few rods of them. In these pits our pickets are stationed and every time Mr. Keb, shows his head, our boys pop away at him. He has the same chance at us, but there has been but very few killed or wounded on our side on picket duty and I presume we have not injured them much. Our artillery keeps up a constant fire and no doubt the shot and shell which they throw into the forts and rifle pits of the rebels kill and wound a great number.

As I am here writing this, I can hear the report of a cannon about every moment. Some away on the right and left of the line are so far away that we can hardly hear their report, while those right in front of us, which we can hear distinctly. You can imagine what a din it makes when I tell you that we have over a hundred guns here in position in the rear behind us and that there are on the mountains and in the ravines in the front of us about every night to watch the shells from the mountains. You can first see the flash of the gun and then you can see the shell as it mounts up higher and higher, then comes the report, and soon the shell begins to fall and just before it falls into the city, you can see them explode and hear the pieces rattle down into the houses. It is very hot and very dry here, but I am not complaining for us have plenty of water from the people of Vicksburg, to have these shells battering over their heads continually.

fifty pounds, so you can see they must hurt when they strike.

home, but want to go real bad. Had I better get a furlough if I can?
I have about given up all hopes of a speedy termination of this war and settled down into the belief that I shall have to stay my regular time here. Well one year of it will be gone, and if I only can have good health, the time will soon pass away.

I have I wrote you in my last letter that I had lately been promoted to Sergeant. It was quite unexpected to me for I was second Corporal and I supposed that the first Corporal would be promoted if any one was, but our officers seemed to think I deserved it so they gave it to me. The pay of a Sergeant is four dollars more than a Corporal, and not as much duty to do either and then there is a better chance of promotion. Taking these things into consideration, I was glad to be promoted and shall endeavor to do my duty as I have here-before.

Mr. Langdon told me yesterday that as soon as he got home he was going to get our Co. another box of guns and send it to us. If he does,
I know you will be interested in it.
You can consult with Charlie about it, but you will send for the box as soon as we need down here.
Although I am not sick now, still something from home would be very highly prized by me.

I am afraid you will think I am getting to be extravagant, but I have come to the conclusion that I will not enlist to make money, and so I intend to spend what I need.
I wish you would tell father to please enclose five dollars (greenbacks) in your next letter to me, for we do not know when we shall be paid again. I am almost out of money. I think there will be no risk in sending it for I receive all of your letters very promptly now days. Do you get my letters? Chancy Blake is home sick with the diarrhea, but how it is no longer serious and that he will soon be up again. The rest of our boys that you know are well. John Nezerita got a good letter from Mrs. K. today which he will answer soon. Please tell Susie that I am owing her a letter, but I have so much duty to do now days that I do not get much time to write, but if she will keep on writing I will write her lots of letters when we get Vicksburg.

Mary I have a request to make and it is this: When you get this letter I want you should get a big sheet of foolscap paper and have all father, mother, aunt and yourself write something on it, a regular old fashioned family letter. Won't you do it? Please do.
Love to all. As ever,
Your loving brother,
Joe.

How I would like to be home now days to hear some of aunt's stories.

Love and Friendship.

To feed love, there must be a difference of tastes and opinions; there must be little sufferings, forgiveness, tears, all that may excite susceptibility and awaken daily solitude.
Friendship is more happy, more peaceful. It is a refuge against all ills of life, it is a consolation for all sufferings.—Marie Capella.

CUTTING OUT ONE FACTOR IN THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

One of the chief causes of high prices is high profits. Any plan that reduces the size or the number of profits that stand between the factory and you is a plan in your benefit.

Regal Shoes are Sold Direct from the Factory to Wearer at Cost Plus Five Per Cent. Commission and the Low Regal Selling Cost

Heretofore, all good shoes have been built to sell at fixed "even" prices—$3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 and so on. If a shoe could be sold at, say $4.35, shoe traditions would not permit it. It had to be "built up" by adding unnecessary expense to sell at $4.50, or "cut down" (to its hurt) to sell at $4.00.

All this has been changed by the Regal Shoe Company's new plan of selling shoes just as many other necessities are sold—and just as all necessities should be—at a definite, small commission over cost of manufacture—in our case only 5 per cent.—plus the cost of selling.

It makes no difference whether or not the price figures out in "even money." The new plan gives you Regal Shoes nearer to actual cost, and charged with smaller and fewer profits than any other make. The price is stamped on the shoes at the factory. This stamp is your guaranty that more of your money goes for quality and less for profit than in any other shoe you can buy.

Regal Prices are now $3.35 to $5.85

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Father needn't think he can monopolize the baggage, indeed not!

"It's the Indian," he said grimly. "Sanchez must 'a' mistook him for one of us, and shot the poor devil."

And Sanchez himself is out yonder on that sand-pit, and Keith pointed; then lifted his voice to make it carry across the stream. "Come on over, Doctor, you and Neb. We've got the gang, firing that body out there along with you."

The "Har X" man waded out to help, and the three together laid the dead Mexican outlaw on the bank, beside the Indian he had shot down in his effort to escape. Keith stood for a moment bending low to look curiously into the dead face—wrinkled, scarred, still featuring cruelty, the thin lips drawn back in a snarl. What scenes of horror those eyes had gazed upon during fifty years of crime; what suffering of men, women, children; what deeds of rapine; what examples of merciless hate. Juan Sanchez—the very sound of the name made the blood-run cold. "Dead or alive!" Well, they had him at last—dead; and the plainman shuddered, as he turned away.

Taking Fairbairn with him and hastily reviewing late occurrences to him, Keith crossed over to the corral, realizing that their work—his work—was not wholly done until Hawley had been located. With this quest in mind he strode straight to the black-headed ghauri who had guarded Hope from Sheridan.

"What is your name?" he asked sharply.

The man looked up scowling.

"Hatchett," he answered gruffly.

"Well, Hatchett, I am going to ask you a question or two, and advise you to reply just about as straight as you know how. I am in no mood tonight for any foolishness. Where is 'Black Har' Hawley?"

"How in hell should I know?"

"You do know, just the same. Perhaps not to an inch, or a mile, but you know near enough where he is, and where he has been since you left Sheridan."

"If I do, I'm damned if I'll tell you."

"No? Well now, Hatchett, listen to me," and Keith's voice had in it the click of a steel trap. "You'll either answer, and answer straight, or we'll hang you to that cottonwood in about five minutes. If you want a chance for your miserable life you answer me. We have our way of treating your kind out in this country. Sit up, you brute! Now where did Hawley go after he left you?"

"To Fort Larned."

"After those fresh horses?"

"Yes."

"He didn't bring them to you; I know that. Where has he been since?"

"Topeky and Leavenworth."

"How do you know?"

"He writ me a note the boss herder brought."

"Found it over?"

Keith took the dirty slip of paper the man reluctantly extracted from his belt, and Fairbairn "it" matches while he ran his eyes hastily over the lines. As he ended he crushed the paper between his fingers, and walked away to the end of the corral. He wanted to be alone, to think, to decide definitely upon what he ought to do. Hawley, according to the schedule just read, must have left Larned alone early the day before; this night he would be camped at the water-hole; with dawnbreak he expected to resume his lonely journey across the desert to the Salt Fork. For years Keith had lived a primitive life, and in some ways his thought had grown primitive. His code of honor was that of the border, thick by that of the South before the war. The antagonism existing between him and this gambler was personal, private, deadly—not an affair for any others—outsiders—to meddle with. He could wait here, and permit Hawley to be made captive; could watch him ride unimpededly into the power of these armed men, and then turn him over to the law to be dealt with. The very thought nauseated him. That would be a coward's act, leaving a stain never to be eradicated. No, he must meet this as became a man, and now, now before Hope as much as dreamed of his purpose—aye, and before he spoke another word of love to Hope. He wheeled about fully decided on his course, his duty, and met Fairbairn face to face.

"Jack," the latter said earnestly, "I read the note over your shoulder, and of course I know what you mean to do. A Southern gentleman could not choose otherwise. But I've come here to beg you to let me have the chance."

"You?" surprised and curious.

"What greater claim on that fellow's life have you than I?"

The pudgy hands of the doctor grasped the plainman's shoulders.

"It's for Christie," he explained brokenly. "She was the one he tried to run away with. You—you know now I feel."

"Sure, I know," shaking the other off, yet not roughly. "But it happened to me Miss White he took, and so this is my job, Fairbairn. Besides, I've got another score to settle with him."

He waited little time upon preparations—a few brief words of instruction to Fairbairn; a request to the doctor not to leave Hope alone; the extracting of a promise from the two "Har X" men to return to Larned with the prisoner. Then he roped the best horse in the corral, saddled and bridled him, and went into the cabin. She had a light burning, and met him at the door.

"I thought you would never come, but they told me you were unhurt."

"Not a scratch, little girl; we have been a lucky bunch. But I have had a great deal to look after. Now I shall be obliged to ride ahead as far as the water-hole, and let you come on with the others a little later, after you get breakfast. You can spare me a few hours, can't you?"

His tone was full of good humor, and his lips smiling, yet somehow she felt her heart sink, an inexplicable fear finding expression in her eyes.

"But—why do you need to go? Couldn't some of the others?"

"There is a reason which I will explain later," he said, more gravely. "Surely you can trust me, Hope, and feel that I am only doing what it seems absolutely necessary for me to do?" He bent down and kissed her. "It will be only for a few hours, and no cause for worry. Good-bye now, until we meet to-night at the water-hole."

The east was gray with coming daylight as he rode splashing across the stream and up the opposite bank. She watched him, rubbing the blinding mist from her eyes, until horse and man became a mere dark speck, finally fading away completely into the dull plain of the desert.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Duel in the Desert.

Keith rode straight forward into the sandy desolation, spurring his horse into a swift trot. After one glance backward as they clambered over the steep bank, a glance which revealed Hope's slender form in the cabin door, his eyes never turned again that way. He had a man's stern work to do out yonder, and his purpose could not be swayed, his firmness of hand and keenness of eye affected, by any thought of her. His lips compressed, his fingers gripping the reins, he drove all regretful memory from his mind, until every nerve within him throbbled in unison with his present purpose. He was right; he knew he was right. It was not hate, not even revenge, which had set him forth, leaving love behind, but honor—the honor of the South, and of the frontier, of his ancestry and his training—honor that drove him now to meet Hawley face to face, man to man, to settle the feud between them for all time. And he rode smiling, gladly, as to a trial, now that he was at last alone, free in the desert.

The hours passed, the sun rising higher in the blazing blue of the sky; the horse, wearied by the constant pull of the sand, had long since slowed down to a walk; the last dim blur of the cottonwoods along the Fork had disappeared; and the rider away in the saddle, the dead loneliness of sky and desert dulling his brain. Yet he had not forgotten his errand—rounding constantly from lethargy to sweep his shaded eyes about the rounded horizon, keenly marking the slightest shadow across the sands, taking advantage of every drift to give him wider viewpoint, rising in his stirrups to scan the leagues of desolation ahead. Twice he drew his revolver from out his sheath, tested it, and slipped in a fresh cartridge, returning the weapon more lightly to its place, the flap of the holster turned back and held open by his leg. The sun beat upon him like a ball of fire, the hot sand flinging the blaze back into his face. He pushed back the upper part of his shirt and drank a swallow of tepid water from a canteen strapped behind the saddle. His eyes ached with the glare, until he saw fantastic red and yellow shapes dancing dizzily before him. The weariness of the long night pressed upon his eye-balls; he felt the strain of the past hours, the lack of food, the need of rest. His head nodded, and he brought himself to life again with a jerk and a muttered word, staring out into the dim, formless distance. Lord, if there was only something moving; something he could concentrate his attention upon; something to rest the straining eyes!

But there was nothing, absolutely nothing—just that seemingly endless stretch of sand, circled by the blazing sky, the wind sweeping its surface soundless and hot, as though from the pits of hell; no stir, no motion, no movement of anything animate or inanimate to break the awful monotony. Death! It was death everywhere! His aching eyes rested on nothing but what was typical of death. Even the heat waves seemed fantastic, grotesque, assuming spectral forms, as though ghosts beckoned and danced in the haze, luring him on to become one of themselves. Keith was not a dreamer, nor one to yield easily to such brain fancies, but the mad delirium of loneliness gripped him, and he had to struggle back to sanity, beating his hands upon his breast to stave off the sluggish circulation of his blood, and talking to the horse in fierce fervor.

The Test.

But of the three sorts, namely, those who are born great, those who acquire greatness, and those who have greatness thrust upon them, only the first are anywise certain to know what the different forks are for at the fashionable dinners inevitably given in their honor from time to time.—Puck.

MEANEST WOMAN IS FOUND

Despicable Trick That One From Los Angeles Played on Her Kansas City Friend.

We often hear of the meanest man, and his delinquencies are exposed to a scornful world with merciless severity, but little is said of the meanest woman, on the theory, presumably, that the dear creatures are so sweet and ethereal that the quality of meanness does not abide in their composition. The Kansas City Journal says:

But assuming, for the sake of argument, that an attractive woman could be mean, the meanest one has certainly been found in Kansas City, according to the following testimony: One day this week, so the story goes, a very pretty young woman gave a photograph of a rather good-looking young man to a negro maid at the Union depot. On the back was the following inscription: "To Evelyn—The best little girl in the world. May she always remain so, Fred." The young woman also gave the maid a smaller picture of the same young man, bound in an attractive silver frame. "I'm going away to my home, out to Los Angeles," she said, "and I don't want to carry these pictures with me. I've written to my chum to come here and get them. I've been visiting her. He is her husband and a dandy fellow."

MEANEST WOMAN IS FOUND

Despicable Trick That One From Los Angeles Played on Her Kansas City Friend.

Speaking of Adam laying the blame on Eve, here is a piece of pure, unadulterated meanness; if the reverend facts are not wholly unloading, that beats Adam and his tribe to the present generation "all hollow." The girl had accepted the young man's attentions, likewise his husband's joy rides, thrilling whispers on the stairs and all the stolen sweets that go to make up the menu of forbidden fruits that relieve life's dull monotony and likewise play hob with domestic happiness. Not only had she accepted his advances, but the circumstantial evidence—though some people profess to doubt the validity of evidence of that sort—goes to show that she had now been wholly a passive quantity in the moods and tenses of the affair.

And yet, when the fun is over and the stolen fruits are sucked dry, she leaves a sour lemon in their place for the husband and wife to divide between them. There are a few mean men in this dreary old world, but only has yet to be found mean enough to stir up, through a sheer spirit of wantonness and malevolence, discord where peace and love reigned before. It takes a woman to win confidence and then put a bitter drop in another woman's cup of happiness.

'Cascarets' Belong In Every Household

Take one as soon as you don't feel just right. It is Old-fashioned and Needless to Take Harsh Doses of Physic.

We all live unnaturally. Our food is too fine, too rich and too plentiful. We eat too little fruit, too few green vegetables. We don't exercise enough. The result is, our bowels get clogged; our liver becomes inactive, for nature intended us to live in a different way. What shall we do? Shall we walk ten miles a day? Shall we diet ourselves? Shall we seek for more laxative and less constive effect in our food? Or shall we take Cascarets? One way will serve just as well as the other.

Cascarets are vegetable laxatives. Their action is as natural as the action of fruit, of coarse food or of exercise. They are gentle. They persuade the bowels—never drive them or irritate them. They are candy tablets, and the dose is one at a time—just as soon as you know that you need it. It is wrong to take harsh physic and to wait until you need a big dose. It is better to keep at your best, every hour of the day. And one Cascaret at a time is sufficient. That means to keep clean inside—keep a 10 cent box handy in the home.

FOOD AND POISON CLOSELY CONNECTED.

By the processes of digestion albuminous food is converted into soluble substances called peptones, which under normal conditions are further converted to the needs of the body for tissue building. But it has been found by experiments on dogs that if peptones are introduced in considerable quantity directly into the veins they greatly depress the circulation, and if in large quantity, completely arrest the secretion of the kidneys and produce convulsions and death. It is seen, therefore, that peptones introduced directly into the general circulation act as poisons. When the liver is working properly (and all products of digestion pass through the liver before entering the general circulation) the peptones are so changed as to be completely disappear in the blood stream before it leaves that organ. But if the liver is inactive, peptones to a greater or less extent escape into the circulation unchanged, poisoning the blood, and producing depression, weakness and melancholy. One's diet should be so proportioned as not to overtax the capacity of the liver in the conversion of the peptones produced from the proteid or albuminous food elements.

"Hair" Grease.

A girl patient in a London hospital asked one morning whether she might have an extra allowance of butter. The house surgeon, to whom the request was made, felt rather injured. "But don't you get enough butter?" he replied. "Well, you see, sir," answered the girl, with a shy but happy smile, "my Herbert is coming to see me today, and I want my hair to look nice."

Burns.

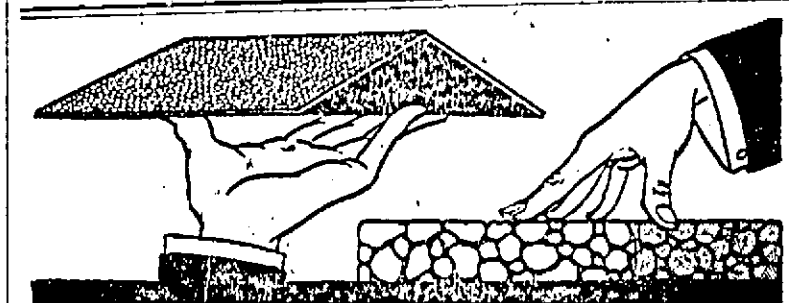

In treating all kinds of burns it is important to exclude the outside air as soon as possible.

The Liver and Courage.

The belief that the liver's condition has an effect on one's courage is not so common in campaign times—"white livered." In "Troilus and Cressida," for example, as found: "Reason and respect make livera pale" and "liverhood defect." Again, in "Hamlet": "But I am pigeon livered and lack gall to make oppression bitter."

Production Poorly Distributed.

Germany, Great Britain and the United States produce four-fifths of the world's supply of pig iron.
